

What makes Lintec different to other testing service providers?

Lintec Testing Services Ltd is focused purely on the testing of marine bunker fuels.

We can offer other analysis, such as lube oil, but this undertaken by a third party laboratory on our behalf.

Concentrating only on the analysis of marine bunker fuels allows our laboratory staff to implement a very efficient method of working.

As a consequence, times taken to report the findings of analysis are minimised, and prices are very competitive.

Lintec is also a very innovative company.

A good example of this is the chemical screening programme which Lintec is now rolling out.

There are similarities with other testing service providers of course.

For example, Lintec offers bunker quantity surveys on a worldwide basis.

Lintec issues reports on the quality of bunker fuels based on the results of analysis carried out.

Lintec also issues bunker alerts when necessary, rather than as a form of publicity.

Fuel quality statistics and bunker alerts are restricted to clients only, as Lintec takes the view that the information they are based on belongs to the clients, not to Lintec.
